BUTLER OPPOSES SIMMONS.

WANTS HIS CREDENTIALS TO LIE OVER AWHILE.

A Good Long Talk in the Senate Yesterday in Which the Present Senator Shows His Venom Towards His Successor.

Special to Charlotte Observer.

Washington, Jan. 29.—Senator Butler explained this evening that on March 4th next, Mr. Simmons, when he presented himself to be sworn in, would be asked to step aside and then that Senator Pritchard or some other Senator would present the resolution he offered today and the Senate would, at the threshold of Mr. Simmons' career, discuss the North Carolina election methods. If the resolution to refer was adopted, then Mr. Simmons would not sit in the Senate until the committee reported. If the resolution to refer was defeated then Mr. Simmons would be sworn in and the precedent followed in the Clark-Montana case of investigation (after beieg seated) be copied. Leading up to this explanation and which in fact caused it were these official Senate proceedings this morning:

Mr. Butler—"I offer the resolution which I send to the desk. I ask for its consideration."

The President pro tempore—"The resolution will be read."

The secretary read as follows:

"Resolved, That the papers that purport to certify to the lawful election of Mr. F. M. Simmons to be a Senator of the United States from North Carolina for six years, beginning March 4 next, be referred to the committee on privileges and elections."

The President pro tempore—"Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution? The chair hears none."

Mr. Butler—"Mr. President, I do not ask present consideration. I was out of the Senate yesterday at lunch when the paper referred to in the resolution was presented, and that is the reason why I did not offer the resolution at that time. I offer it now, but inasmuch as it will be the next Congress that will have to deal with this subject, and not this Congress, I ask that the resolution lie on the table with the credentials referred to."

The President pro tempore—"Without objection it will be so ordered."

Mr. Bacon—"Mr. President, the Senator from North Carolina spoke in such a low tone of voice that it was difficult to hear accurately what he said and Senators in the rear of me say they did not hear at all. I will, therefore, ask the Senator if he will repeat what he said."

The President pro tem.—"The Senator from North Carolina simply asked that the resolution lie on the table."

Mr. Bacon—"Until the next Congress?"

The President pro tempore—"Yes."

"Mr. Butler—"The credentials will lie on the table and I desire the resolution to lie on the table with them."

Mr. Bacon—"As I understand, the Senator makes the motion, but it is to be withdrawn without action at this session of Congress."

Mr. Hoar—"The Senator from Georgia said Senators on the other side could not hear the Senator from North Carolina, and we on this side of the chamber cannot hear what the Senator from Georgia is saying."

Mr. Butler—"Mr. President, no doubt the Senate, if it saw fit to do so, could lawfully act on the resolution now; but I understand it has been the custom of the Senate—and it seems to me a proper one and I should not desire to change it—that any action pertaining to the credentials of a member of the next Congress should not be acted upon by a preceeding Congress. Since the credentials have simply been read as a matter of notice and without acquiring any status thereby, I have offered the resolution simply as a matter of notice, and I will let it lie upon the table with the credentials."

Mr. Bacon—"Mr. President, I do not know of any practical evil that may flow from the course suggested by the Senator from North Carolina; but I presume it will be recognized by everybody that any action taken in this Congress dies with this Congress."

Mr. Butler — "Everybody knows that."

Mr. Bacon—"But the Senator asks that the motion which he now makes may lie on the table until the next session of Congress. That is the point to which I direct my objection If the matter simply asks that the resolution lie on the table I have nothing to say."

Mr. Butler—"That is just what I asked."

Mr. Bacon—"When the Senator asks, as I understand him, that the resolution may lie on the table until the next Congress, I say that is not a competent motion for any Senator to make, and, therefore, when the chair was about to announce, that, without objection, the request of the Senator form North Carolina would be granted it was equivalent, if I am correct in my view of the action of the Senate, to consenting that in the present session of Congress a motion could be made and under the implied approval of Congress and an implied affirmation of its correctness, that that motion would be a live motion for the consideration of Congress at its next session. Of course, that cannot be, and every Senator will recognize that fact. It was simply with reference to that part of the motion, if I understand the Senator correctly, that I interposed the objection. If the Senator limits it simply to a motion that the resolution lie on the table, I have nothing to say."

Mr. Butler—"I repeat that is just the request I made."

New York Labor Troubles.

Albany Dispatch, 27th.

There were 547 strikes and lockouts in the State last year as shown by the State Board of Mediation and Arbitration, seven-tenths of which were occasioned by questions of wages and hours of labor. The number last year showed an increase over the preceding year, and reached the highest total for any year since the State board was established, though there were fewer serious labor troubles than usual. The strikes were divided as follows: Building trades, 151; laborers, 69; garment workers, 24; textile workers, 32; iron workers, 34; tobacco workers, 25. The board says that few of the above strikes required the services of the board, but to the majority of the remainder of the 225 labor disturbances the board gave attention. The strikers were successful in 335 cases, either gaining all they wanted or compromising, while 212 strikes were unsuccessful. The question of wages was responsible for 363 strikes and unionism for 104. Of these strikes 167 lasted a day, 173 three days, 111 from three days to a week, 68 from a week to a month, while 16 lasted more than a month.

Hobson Out Again.

The New York Sun of Sunday says: Lieutenant Richmond Pearson Hobson, who has been in the Presbyterian Hospital with typhoid fever since December 1st, left there yesterday afternoon. He will spend a few days in this city with a friend, S. R. Bertron, of No. 46 West Fifty-fourth street, and then go to his home in Greensboro, Ala. Admiral Sampson invited him to visit Boston, but the Lieutenant did not think it advisable to make the trip in his present weakened condition. Lieutenant Hobson's illness was very severe. His fever ran seven weeks, and for almost five weeks his temperature was 103 on an average. One of the Lieutenant's first acts yesterday morning was to send a reply to a cablegram of sympathy received from Admiral Cervera at the time of his illness.

Frank James Defeated.

Frank James, the former bandit, was a candidate before the Missouri Legislature for doorkeeper of the House, but failed to get the place. He says:

"I feel deeply humiliated over my defeat. I have reached the conclusion that the people of Missouri are, at least, very ungrateful. I asked an indorsement of the years I have lived as a peaceful and honest citizen and I have received condemnation. I have fulfilled every promise I made to Governor Crittendon at the time of my surrender, carried out every compact to the letter. I had pledges from fully two-thirds of the representatives, and yet when the caucus was held received but thirteen votes. Revenge? No. I am not seeking it. I have fought my first and last political battle, and lost."

PENSION ALL NEEDY SOLDIERS.

BILL TO HELP ALL OVER 55 YEARS OF AGE NOT WORTH $500.

Another Democrat Keeps His Seat in Contested Case—Practical Farmers for the Agricultural Board.

Special Dispatch to The Telegram.

Raleigh, Jan. 30.—The Senate passed the bill incorporating the Ruthfordton Railway Company, also the bill providing that only practical farmers shall be on the Board of Agriculture.

There was a long discussion of the bill to allow alimony in cases of absolute divorce. The bill failed to pass, ayes 18, naes twenty.

A bill was introduced in the House placing all Confederate soldiers over 55 years of age and not worth over $500 on the pension rolls.

The contested election case of Cowell against Dees from Pamlico was settled in favor of Dees, the sitting Democratic member.

The Speaker announced Spainhour as chairman of the committee on courts and judicial districts; Whitaker on apportionment of congressional districts; Watts chairman of that on senatorial districts.

Bills for the establishment of a reformatory, to reduce cost of school books and to provide a better system for examining teachers were introduced.

The Hanging Bill in the House Yesterday.

Raleigh Post.

The bill introduced by Mr. Willard of New Hanover, directing that all executions in the State be conducted at the State prison here, and which provides that all criminals convicted of a capital felony shall be brought here immediately after conviction, was the only subject of debate in the House yesterday.

There were many advocates of the measure, while several members spoke against the bill. Several amendments were offered, and it was finally decided to recommit the bill, with all amendments, to the Committee on Propositions and Grievances, who are to make a report, after hearing such gentlemen as desire to speak on the measure.

The bill came up with a favorable report.

Judge Connor, who began the discussion, said:

"I rather approve of the scope and general intent of the bill. I do not approve of the section which requires that life convicts shall execute such criminals as are to be hanged. I think the execution of criminals in the State prison is the proper thing. I am unalterably opposed to public executions. They are brutalizing and demoralizing to public morals."

Mr. Willard, the author of the measure, said a similar law had been enacted in a number oi States. He referred to the fact that in New York life convicts were the executioners. In that State four convicts press on as many buttons, only one of which carries death. Neither the convicts nor any one else knows the real executioner. Continuing, Mr. Willard said: "I have heard of a sheriff in this State who helped acquit a man on trial for his life because he desired to keep from hanging him. The fact that the sheriff of a county should use his influence to defeat justice ought not to be possible. This is one of the reasons why I introduced the bill. All remember the shocking hanging in Sampson county and the horrible circumstances attending it. Here at the State prison executions can be conducted properly and without the attendant brutality that characterizes so many hangings in the State. To avoid bungling executions this bill should be passed."

Mr. McLean of Scotland—"I am opposed to this bill. I don't think it is right to execute laws with convicts. If criminals are hung in the penitentiary there will be men to stop trains to capture them. There are enough good men in the State who are willing to execute the laws. It will cost the State much money. Guards will have to accompany prisoners here and that

Ruffin Will be Hanged.

Special Dispatch to The Telegram.

Raleigh, Jan. 30.—Governor Aycock refuses to further interfere in the case of John Ruffin the young negro sentenced to death at Graham for rape. Ruffin was to have been hanged last Friday, but the execution was stayed by the Governor for a week pending investigation. The man will therefore be hanged Saturday.

Lost Her Pocket Book.

A white woman at the Southern depot last night had the misforturne to have her pocket book stolen. She came in from Manchester in the afternoon and purchased a ticket to Haw River, had her baggage checked, and put the ticket and check in a small handbag, which also, she said, contained about six dollars in money. While the early evening trains were coming in she left her satchel on a seat in the reception room for a few minutes, and when she returned it was gone. No clue as to its whereabouts could be found, and as she was without further money, Chief Scott bought her a ticket to Haw River, to which place she went on the midnight train.

Mrs. Summerrow Got $3,000.

In the case of B. J. and Lizzie L. Summerrow against Herman and D. H. Baruch, the jury at Charlotte Saturday returned a verdict giving the plaintiff $3,000. The amount of damages asked was $5,000. The substance of the argument for the plaintiffs was that Samuel Friedheim, who accused her of trying to steal lace, was an agent for the defendants, while the defense contended that Friedheim was not an agent, but if he was an agent he was not within the scope of his agency when he accused Mrs. Summerrow.

$2,000 More Damages.

Another suit against the Southern was begun yesterday afternoon and concluded this morning, the plaintiff this time asking for $6,000 and being awarded $2,000 by the jury. The injured party in this case is a negro boy named John Fairly, aged 22, who while acting as brakeman in May 1899, got his arm crushed at Walnut Cove. This suit was also conducted by Col. Barringer. The judgments so far secured at this court from the Southern aggregate $10,000.

Chinese Petition the Emperor to Fix a Date for His Return to Look After the Tombs of His Fathers.

By Wire to The Telegram.

Pekin, Jan. 30.—Three hundred prominent Chinese residents of Kiangsi province have sent a memorial to the Emperor requesting him to make public the announcement of a certain date for his return to Pekin, in order to satisfy the people. They assert that the Boxer troubles were entirely due to a few high officers, but as these now have been ordered punished, the court ought to return to Pekin, as the Princes' tombs and other property are there and the responsibilities of two hundred years cannot be thrown lightly aside.

A courtmartial which causes considerable interest has been held at Tien Tsin during the last two weeks. The men on trial are privates Dickson and Seamons, of the Fifteenth Infantry. It was published in October that these men while on guard duty along the river held up several villagers and demanding a hundred to two hundred taels protection money. In some cases the demands were complied with. They were captured by the French and handed over to the American authorities. During the trial Dickson escaped and is still at liberty. Seamons was sentenced to twenty years imprisment and Dickson to twenty-one years.

He takes this action on account of ill health, and through the advice of his physician. He will for some time take a complete rest in order to restore his health, afterward engaging in a business that will enable him to spend a good portion of his time out of doors. Mr. Rankin has been in the clothing business here for twelve years, before that time having been in the service of the old Richmond & Danville railroad, and one of the most popular conductors on the road.

BABY IN FOLDING BED.

It Was a Visitor's Baby and Smith Hadn't Noticed It---It's Dead and He's Locked Up.

New York Sun.

William Smith, who lives in Lebanon avenue, West Farms, shut up a folding bed yesterday without noticing that a three-months-old baby was lying on it, and when they opened the bed the baby was dead. Smith protested that it was an accident, but he is locked up by the police all the same.

It wasn't Smith's baby, but the infant son of Thomas Lansburg, whom his parents had brought with them to visit the Smiths, When they arrived Mrs. Lansburg went up stairs to take off her wraps. She left little Thomas on the folding bed in the Smith's sitting room. Mr. Smith went to the room a few minutes later to make a fire in the stove. He began by "straightening up" the room, and, not noticing the child asleep on the bed, he shut the bed up, because it took up too much room. A short time later Mrs. Lansburg came in.

"Where's the baby?" she asked. Smith said he hadn't seen any baby. Mrs. Lansburg began to develop hysterical symptoms.

"Why," said she, "I left him asleep on the folding bed."

Smith said in great alarm that he had not seen the child on the bed, and quickly opened it. The baby was curled up in the bed, dead. Smith was horror struck. He swore that he never once dreamed that her child was in the bed.

Policeman McDonahue of the Bronx Park station was called in for counsel. He arrested Smith and took him to the police station. Mr. Lansburg followed him and offered to furnish $1,000 cash bail for Smith, saying that he was satisfied that his neighbor had not meant to be the cause of his child's death, but Smith was detained.

A Blackmailer Bluffed.

New York Sun.

A West Side physician was about to leave his office on Friday night, when a well dressed woman met him at the door and said that she must see him for a moment. The physician stepped back into his reception room and he saw that the woman who followed him was a stranger. She made two or three rambling remarks and he asked her what she wanted. The door into the physician's operating room was open and the woman could see no one in there.

"Doctor," she said, "you could not afford to have a woman make a scene in your office, could you? You don't know me, but I am a very hysterical woman. I think that if you would give me enough to pay my car fare to Chicago it might prevent a scene."

The physician saw before she had finished that he had a dangerous blackmailer to deal with.

"You are the first of your kind that I have seen for more than a year," he said pleasantly. "I was telling my assistaut a few days ago about this sort of blackmailing game. He is about to make some flashlight pictures of my operating room. If you will wait just a moment I will bring him out to take your picture."

The physician stepped into his operating room and called his assistant's name. The woman did as he hoped and took the opportunity to escape to the street. The physician's assistant had gone home an hour before and the physician had simply worked a successful bluff.

"We are more liable to be worked by blackmailers of this kind," he said, "than any other class of professional men and I am always on my guard If the womon had carried out her threat and made a scene it would have been simply my word against hers. If she did not happen to be known to the police many people would believe any story she might choose to tell. Fortunately my bluff worked.

To Suppress Hazing.

Special to The Telegram.

Washington, Jan. 30.—The investigations of the hazing operations at West Point have made a great sensation here, The feeling among members of Congress on the subject is one of great indignation, and it is almost certain that action will be taken at this session of Congress to put an end to it. The Senate Committee on Military Affairs discussed the matter and every member of it expressed himse f in favor of legislation that would effectually stop hazing. The committee agreed to incorporate in the military academy appropriation bill the following provision:—

Under the direction of the Secretary of War, the Superintendent of the United States Military Academy shall make and enforce such rules and regulations as will prevent the practice of hazing; and any cadet found guilty of participating in such practice shall be expelled from the academy and shall not be reappointed to the corps of cadets therein, nor to the army of the United States.

In the debate in the Senate on the army bill there have been strong expressions of feeling againsthazing and the cadets have been pronounced cowardly in the extreme. The fact that the first class cadets always pitted an experienced and stronger man against the inexperienced and weaker fourth class man, as testified to at West Point, so as to make certain that the fourth class man would be severely punished, has been a cause here of much comment.

Knights Templar Reception.

Special to The Telegram.

New York, Jan. 30.—Palestine Commandery, Knights Templar, will hold a grand reception tonight at the Waldorf-Astoria. In addition to the entire second floor of the hotel, which in previous years has been sufficient space for the entertainment of the guests of the Commandery, the four big dining rooms have also been acquired, and will tonight be closed to the general public at 11 o'clock.

A gigantic cross of Roosevelt Links, set in a bell of oak leaves, will be presented to the Commandery. The cross is six feet high, and the entire floral piece is nine feet by four feet. It took five thousand flowers to fill out the design. The cross is the contribution of an enthusiastic admirer of Col. Roosevelt, who recently became a Mason after previously and quite recently becoming a vice president. The significance of the gift is that the Roosevelt carnation is the exact blood-red shade of the cross which distinguishes Knights Templary.

of cod-liver oil is the means of life, and enjoyment of life to thousands: men women and children.

When appetite fails, it restores it. When food is a burden, it lifts the burden.

When you lose flesh, it brings the plumpness of health.

When work is hard and duty is heavy, it makes life bright.

It is the thin edge of the wedge; the thick end is food. But what is the use of food, when you hate it, and can't digest it?

Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil is the food that makes you forget your stomach.

If you have not tried it, send for free sample, its agreeable taste will surprise you.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 30

FAIR.

Our neighbor, Charlo te, is never slow about getting on to a good thing. She is now moving for a fair. Copies of the following letter, signed by the Chamber of Commerce, were sent to all parts of Mecklenburg county yesterday, says the Observer:

Dear Sir: As a representative resident and citizen of Mecklenburg county, the Charlotte chamber of commerce extends to you a cordial invitation to be present at our meeting next Thursday night, to give us your views upon the matter of holding an annual fair in Charlotte. The object of the fair to be to bring together the people of the county and create a friendly rivalry among the agriculturists and manufacturers in the exhibit of their products. We hope that you will be present that night.

We copy this merely because it relates to the work of fairs and Greensboro is interested in that work. We take this occasion,too,to say that it is gratifying that the management of the Central Carolina Fair has already decided to make the second Fair a greater success than the first, and is now taking steps towards that end. They cannot begin too soon. We must have a great Fair.

The probability of the establishment of a reformatory appears to be slim. There is difference of opinion as to its necessity. The Wilmington Star says:

There is a bill pending in the Legislature for the establishment of a refomatory for white juvenile criminals, a reformatory for the blacks to be considered later. This bill is in accord with the best sentiment of the people of North Carolina, for it is the right move for the sake of the young criminals, and also for the sake of the people who have to pay taxes for supporting courts, jails and penitentiaries. The official records show that there are about eighty youthful criminals now in the penitentiary of this State, and no thoughtful, candid person would assert that this is the proper place for them.

The Morganton Herald says that in the past five years, according to Superintendent Travis, there have been only five youthful criminals in the penitentiary. Even if this is the case, it does not follow that a reformatory is not needed. The number of youthful criminals that go to the penitentiary is not a circumstance to those that go to jail and to the county roads.

We take it unkindly of King Edward that he has not yet acknowledged the resolution of sympathy passed by the tobacco dealers of Danville. Perhaps he will after the first burst of grief is over.

The bill providing that all executions in the State shall occur in the State prison at Raleigh is a good one, with the exception of that part which requires that the execution shall be done by life convicts. The law has no more right to force this duty upon a convict than it has to put it upon a minister of the gospel The duty attaches to some office, which office some man voluntarily assumes, and with it the duty of executing criminals.

Maybe the Queen's death has caused the Hon. Alfred Austin to turn over a new leaf. Such portions of his latest poem as we have seen might be called verse without hurting the feelings of the Muses.—Norfolk Landmark.

Elsewhere we print some extracts from the poem which the Landmark thinks is not offensive to the Muses. We had indeed noted that Alf is doing some better than usual.

AN UNKNOWN GUEST.

A Childless Couple in Raleigh Are Supplied With an Infant.

Raleigh Post.

A baby boy not more than a few hours old was left on the door step at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Pool Saturday night between 10 and 11 o'clock.

Mr. Pool was up town on an errand at the time and Mrs. Pool was alone in the house. She heard three raps on the door and on answering the knock she saw a two horse carriage drive away rapidly down West Cabarrus street. As she stood in the door Mrs. Pool saw at her feet a carefully prepared bundle, two of them in fact. When she carried them into the house examination revealed the fact that one was a baby and the other a bundle of little clothes neatly wrapped in a copy of the Raleigh Times dated January 22d. The child was wrapped up in an old skirt. There was nothing which would furnish a clue to the parties who left the child on the step.

Mrs. Pool proceeded at once to do all in her power for the comfort of the little one. She rang up Mr. Pool by telephone and asked him to bring a bottle of milk home with him. This he did, not having any idea, however, what the reason was for ordering the milk.

The child is being well cared for and Mr. and Mrs. Pool will in all probability keep it. There seems to be no clue to its identity. A negro woman who lives in the neighborhood of Mr. and Mrs. Pool says she saw the carriage drive down Cabarrus street toward the Pool residence and that it stopped at two or three other places along the street before one of apparently two occupants got out and went ug to Mr. Pool's front door with the bundle.

The Poor Man's Dog.

Statesville Landmark.

A number of bills have been introduced in the Legislaturs to tax dogs but it is safe to say that none of them will pass. Just why a dog should not be taxed is hard to understand but there are demagogues who will stand up and talk against taxing "the poor man's dog." Such exhibitions of demagoguery are so utterly contemptible that it is almost impossible to characterize them in parliamentry language. The "poor man's" horse, cow, pig sheep, etc., which are necessities to him, are taxed. Why not the dog? Dogs are not a necessity but a luxury. If one has a valuable dog he will pay taxes on it. If the dog is not worth paying taxes on it should be killed and it would be a God send if one-half or three-fourths of the dogs in the State could be killed tomorrow About that proportion of the whole lot are not only worthless but they are nuisances, cumberers of the ground, destructive and dangerous to the human family. We have no prejudice against the dog family. We admire a good dog. But there is no good reason why they should not be taxed and this sentimental rot about not taxing them is purile and disgusting.

A Bequest for Guilford.

Correspondence Charlotte Observer.

Guilford College, Jan. 20.--During the past week information has been received of a bequest of $1,500 to Guilford College by the will of the late William Johnson, of Carthage, Ind. It is a cause of thankfulness on the part of those who bear the responsibility of management that the friends of education in various parts of the country have means for perpetuating the good work of educational institutions.

Many members of the Society of Friends left North Carolina half a century ago and have become, through themselves and their children, instrumental in building up large bodies of Friends in the West. Their remembrance of their former home in North Carolina and their education at New Garden School has been a source of considerable additions to the endowment of Guilford College.

The college has been favored during the past week with having the company and excellent service of Rev. G. C. Huntington, of Charlotte, who has been very helpful to the work of the Y. M. C. A., and to the general religious interest of the college. On the Sabbath Mr. Huntington preached very acceptably at the regular 11 o'clock meeting. He left the college early Monday morning for his home will be an item itself."

Mr. Dula of Mecklenburg—"I hesitate to vote for such an important measure with such little light on this question before me. It is breaking away from an old custom. The expense of transmitting convicts here is an item to be considered. These condemned men have friends and families, and consideration should be had for them. I do not think the bill should pass."

Mr. Connor of Wilson, offered an amendment which directed that the warden conduct the hangings.

Mr. Blythe of Robeson—"I am absolutely opposed to this bill. The laws of the State make ample provision for executions now. As at present, friends can reclaim the bodies of convicts."

Mr. Winston—"Does the bill provide that bodies shall be sent back to their counties?"

Mr. Willard—"No."

Mr. Brittain of Randolph—"I see no good reason for the passage of this bill. I represent the strongest Quaker county in the State, and we find men ready to execute the laws. The only man hanged in the county in years was executed by a Quaker, and he was defeated for re-election. I think it is adding condemnation to misery to bring convicts to the penitentiary to execute them. It bears a hardship on the convict and on his family."

Mr Smith of Gates—"I think the bill proposes a too radical change in the law to be acted upon without further information, and I move that the bill be made the special order tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock."

Mr. McLean of Scotland—"I think every man here has made up his mind, and we have no right to take up the time of the Legislature with such discussions. I would stay here until doom's day before I would vote for this bill."

Mr. Willard said he had no special concern as to the bill, and that he only introduced it because he believed it was a good measure. He expressed a willingness for an immediate vote.

Mr. Bradsher, of Person, made an eloquent speech for the bill. "When a man is to be hanged," Mr. Bradsher declared, "he had just as soon be hanged in the penitentiary as anywhere else. Public executions are a blot on civilization. A hanging is almost as demoralizing as a lynching. This bill is in line with the public sentiment of the day. I remember well the last public hanging in my county. I will remember it as the most degrading and demoralizing sight I ever saw. I can't see why any objection can be raised when a criminal who has been tried by a jury, convicted and sentenced to pay the higest penalty of the law, will be hanged here humanely, quietly and privately as the provisions of this bill will require. If this bill passes, executions will be conducted hamanely and decently and in such a way that public decency would not be shocked. I believe the day is not far distant when capital punishment will be abolished."

Mr. Thompson, of Onslow—"I hope the motion to postpone will prevail. If I thought this bill contemplated the abolition of capital punishment I would oppose it. There are certain crimes which should be punished by execution; and though I am a lawyer, I say there is one crime for which lynching is even possibly better than hanging. So far as expense to the county is concerned, I think it will be cheaper for the counties, if this bill is passed. It costs all of two hundred dollars to conduct an execution. Criminals can be sent to the penitentiary for much less than that. The State was disgraced by the Kinsauls execution in Sampson county. We ought not to have a repetition of an other such execution. This Legislature should pass a bill satisfactory to the most humane and one that will carry terror to those who violate the law. I know the love of a mother for her son, and I know she will go to him if living. But the passage of this bill would save the mothers and relatives of condemned criminals many tears. It would save the mother many heart-burns if the boy who is to be hanged were taken away. It would be an act of mercy to her. Executions out to be conducted in a way that would not shock public decency."

Mr. McKathan, of Cumberland, favored postponement. He declared that all hangings should be private. He said that he desired to see a bill perfected along this line, and when perfected he would vote for it.

Mr. Gattis, of Orange, offered an amendment, directing that the warden of the penitentiary turn the bodies of convicts executed, over to the State medical institutions when not claimed by friends.

Mr. Smith's motion to make the bill the special order today at 11 o'clock was defeated. The bill was re-committed to the Committee on Propositions and Grievances for farther consideration.

HICK'S CAPUDINE

OUR NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Unpleasant Condition of Washington Up to the Opening of the Civil War.

When Washington last beheld the city which bears his name, shortly before his death in 1799, it was a straggling settlement in the woods, almost wholly devoid of streets, with 30 or 40 residences—most of these small and uncomfortable—and an unfinished capitol and president's house. Indeed, Washington long remained a sparsely built, unsightly city and a comfortable place of residence. For more than a generation its growth in population was less than 600 a year—a rate of increase that would now put to shame almost any village in the land; and so late as 1840 De Bacourt, the French minister, could write that Washington was "neither a city, nor a village, nor the country," but "a building yard placed in a desolate spot, wherein living is unbearable."

The opening of the civil war found it a dirty, straggling, unkempt town. The water supply came from pumps and springs; there were neither street cars nor paved streets; no fire department, no police force, worthy of the name, and not a sewer in the city. Eastern bluffs lined the river bank; stables and wooden fences surrounded the white house; the present departments were not half finished, and the parks and commons were given up to weeds. But all this was changed by the struggle of the union, which doubled the population of Washington and brought in freedom and northern enterprise, but more important still, by a thousand moving and glorious associations, endeared the capital to the people of the whole country. Then came its remaking by Shepherd and his associates. Now it is truly an imperial city, and the judgment of Washington and the genius of L'Enfant have been vindicated.

HIS PROPHECY CAME TRUE.

Verification of a Harvard Professor's Prediction as to Our Present Population.

Edward Wigglesworth, "Hollis professor of divinity at Cambridge," in a little pamphlet published in the portentous year of 1775, must have had a correct idea of the prosperity of this country during the century just closed, as he predicted that the population of the "British American colonies" in 1900 would be 80,000,000, says the National Magazine.

Included in this estimate was Nova Scotia, now the Dominion of Canada, which with its last recorded census result of 4,800,000 added to the 76,000,000 of the United States fulfills almost to the letter the accuracy of the Wigglesworth prophecy. And this somewhat remarkable forecast was not based upon any species of guess work, but upon a well defined and clearly constructed mathematical theory, which, reduced to plain words, can be best described in the language of its author:

"The British-Americans have doubled their numbers in every period of 25 years from their first plantation."

Taking this statistical fact as a basis for his calculations the Harvard divinity professor constructed a system of reckoning the increase of a country's population which history has shown to be as correct as his method was simple.

Assuming that the 1775 population was 2,500,000, Mr. Wigglesworth estimated 5,000,000 for 1800, 10,000,000 for 1825, 20,000,000 for 1850, 40,000,000 for 1875 and 80,000,000 for 1900, and the record of the United States census since its initial taking in 1790 shows substantially these figures, as follows: Census of 1800, 5,308,000; 1825 (1820), 9,633,000; 1850, 23,191,000; 1875 (1876), 38,658,000; 1900, with Canada, 81,000,000.

GREEKS LIKE THE OPEN AIR.

In This Respect the Modern Athenian Resembles His Early Ancestors.

The Athenians dine late the year round, and, whenever the weather will permit, in the open air, says a writer in Scribner's. As the heated season advances the dinner hour is set later and later, until in August 9:30 or 10 becomes the common thing. Fancy going to the theater after that! Yet the open air performances are liberally patronized, and they do not begin, of course, until after dinner. The legend "curtain rises promptly at nine" is a snare and a delusion, as many a foreigner has found to his extreme annoyance.

The out-of-door dining and the sky-roofed theaters are so typically Greek that they serve as a link between modern and classical times. The old Greek, as everybody knows, was an outdoor man, his house serving as little more than a sleeping place and storeroom. The Athenian of to-day dines in a garden, on a terrace or in a park. If he is too poor to possess any of these accessories, he sets his table upon the sidewalk. Many of the cheap restaurants appropriate the walks for dining-rooms. One is often compelled when taking an evening stroll to dodge in and out among dozens of tables covered with reasonably clean linen and lighted by means of candles, whose flames are protected from the wind by means of glass globes.

Joshua Baker's Downfall

By Charles J. Adams.

JOSHUA BAKER'S downfall began with the election of women to the school board. In the little Massachusetts hill town where he lived he had ruled with a rod of iron, since the unlucky day when he was sent to represent his district in the legislature. That was his introduction into public life, and it created within him an insatiable appetite for office.

He had been first selectman and chairman of the school board for more years than we younger people could remember, and in both capacities rode roughshod over his companions in office. There was a magnetic power about the man, or he would not have been reelected year after year. He was an efficient and faithful public servant, but association with him in the administration of town affairs was an unpleasant task, which few craved.

The novelty of placing women on the school board strongly appealed to the people of the town—we will call it Ridgeville. The first year the plan was adopted, Mrs. Abel Ayres and Miss Samantha Dock became Joshua Baker's partners in office. The former possessed a fine education and great culture, but was totally lacking in fighting ability. This deficiency was more than made up, however, by Miss Samantha, who had a very determined mind of her own, and enjoyed nothing better than a tilt with her neighbors. When the result of the election was known, everybody realized that war was inevitable, and its beginning was awaited with keen expectancy. It came even sooner than was apprehended.

Joshua Baker frowned and hemmed and hawed when he read, one morning a week later, a note he had just taken from the post office.

"Dear Sir," it began. "We, the undersigned, beg leave to inform you that there will be a meeting of the school board to-morrow evening, in the selectmen's room, for organization and the transaction of routine business." And it was signed by Mrs. Abel Ayres and Miss Samantha Dock. It was written in Miss Samantha's nervous hand, and every letter breathed defiance.

The post office was filled with idlers. Joshua's face betrayed his vexation, and in response to a query as to the cause of it, he read the note aloud, in a clear, deliberate voice which, nevertheless, attempted no concealment of his disgust. That was his first mistake.

"Wal, I'll be blowed!" ejaculated Silas Wiggins, the village blacksmith. "Pretty headstrong, ain't they? Takin' the reins right into their own hands."

"Indeed they are, Mr. Wiggins," replied Joshua. "Indeed they are, sir. But they will find they can gain no advantage over me by such a course. I shall not attend the meeting."

"Ye'd best not stay away," ventured Mr. Wiggins, after a short pause. "They'd be electing one of themselves chairman, and nobody knows what other nonsense. 'Pears to me ye'd ought to be there, for the safety of the public, if for no other reason."

This was a new thought to Joshua. He hemmed and frowned more violently than before.

"I believe you are right, Mr. Wiggins," he said, at last. "Yes, you are certainly right. My obligations to the public cannot be laid aside. I will attend the meeting and," raising his voice, "my good friends, I invite you all to be present."

That was Joshua's second blunder. It was customary in those days for the meetings of the school board to be open to the public, but the privilege was seldom taken advantage of. On this occasion, however, the selectmen's room was crowded. Mrs. Abel and Miss Samantha were at first surprised, then vexed, when they understood that Joshua had especially invited the crowd to witness their defeat. Samantha's black eyes snapped dangerously.

"We may as well begin at once," she said, as Joshua, the last of the three, entered the room. "We'll ballot for chairman first."

The committeewomen and the lone committeeman seated themselves at the long table and prepared their ballots. Samantha counted them, calmly taking this responsibility upon herself. There was one vote for each of the three members. Joshua's face was a study. He had never seriously doubted that he would be elected at once, as he had been for so many years. The two women exchanged significant glances.

The result was not changed by the second ballot, nor by the third. Finally, when, after the ninth ballot, Miss Samantha announced that still there was no election, she held up her hand to stay Joshua, who was already preparing his next vote.

"One moment, Mr. Baker," she said, grimly. "I guess this has gone about far enough. We may as well understand each other right now. Neither Mrs. Ayres nor I want to be chairman. We've been voting each for the other right along, and we can keep it up a spell longer, if need be. That shows that you must have been voting for yourself."

"Yes, madam!" exclaimed the now furious Joshua. "I have been voting for myself, and I shall continue to do so, because I believe that I am the only member of the board capable of performing the duties of chairman as they should be performed."

"That's all right," interrupted Samantha. "We don't blame you a mite; and as we don't want the office we are willing to elect you on the next ballot, only you must agree to some things first. We know how you have carried on, how you have refused to put to vote motions you didn't like and bulldozed generally the other members of the committee. It's time to call a halt. If you will promise faithfully, in the presence of these people, that you have invited here, to deal with us fairly, and to conduct the meetings of this committee in a parliamentary manner, we'll elect you. If you won't promise, we can keep up the deadlock forever. What do you say?"

A titter had begun in the audience, which grew into a hearty laugh, and finally broke into open applause as Samantha ceased speaking. For a moment Joshua looked about him at the people and at the women before him, like some enraged animal who would toss them all on his horns. But seeing that his official companions held the upper hand, and that the sympathy of the people was clearly against him, he restrained himself with an effort and forced a smile to his lips.

"I gladly promise," he said, "to do whatever is right. More than that I would not promise for the highest office in the land. Let us close the discussion and prepare our tenth ballot."

Mr. Baker was unanimously elected, but the women had won a victory, and Joshua was not only defeated, but humiliated openly before the people.

Humiliated he certainly was, and sought savagely for an opportunity to take revenge. The meetings of the school board that winter were stormy ones, and it was largely to the crowds that gathered to witness the frays that Mrs. Abel and Miss Samantha owed their escape from much the same browbeating to which their predecessors had submitted. As the year rolled on and Joshua was thwarted at every point, the ridicule at his discomfiture became more open. Ridicule is a powerful factor in politics, and Joshua viewed with alarm his waning prestige. It was not until spring, however, that he saw his chance to strike a decisive blow and assert his mastership.

There had been constant difficulty that year in keeping a teacher at the Center school. One had resigned to accept a more lucrative position elsewhere, another had been taken suddenly ill, while a third had proved incapable and been dismissed. As each vacancy occurred, Mrs. Abel and Miss Samantha urged the election of a Miss Clay, of Ridgeville, a young woman admirably fitted for the position, but whose election had been strenuously opposed by Joshua. The last time he had won his point only by promising that Miss Clay should be given a trial, should another vacancy occur during the year.

Now on the opening day of the spring term, Joshua received word that the young man they had engaged was unable to appear. As he walked up-street in a quandary how to avoid keeping his former promise, he saw Mrs. Abel and Samantha ride past in the stage, apparently bound to the city. A sudden light broke in upon him. He posted messengers to the houses of his absent fellow-committeemen to call a special meeting of the board that noon, to elect a new teacher. Then, feeling sure there could be no meeting that day and that he was technically justified in acting on his own account, he himself hastened to the city, to secure a young man he had long had in mind for the position.

But Mrs. Abel and Miss Samantha had not gone to the city. They had each received a notice, like that sent to Joshua, that the teacher they had engaged had failed them, and having in mind Joshua's promise, had decided to act on their own responsibility, without farther consultation. Accordingly they had merely gone down the road a mile or two, by stage, to the home of Miss Clay, where they offered her the position. In short, Miss Clay opened school that very morning, less than two hours after the regular opening hour.

Finding Joshua's message, on their return home, the two women met again, shortly afterward, at the selectmen's room, at the specified hour, but no Joshua appeared. Partly surmising the truth, and hugely enjoying their advantage, they elected Miss Clay permanent teacher, and fixed her salary with due formality.

Joshua's emotions, when he drove into town that evening with his imported teacher, defy expression. The story was soon noised about, and his new defeat redoubled the former ridicule. The upshot of the matter was that he resigned from the board in great indignation.

But that was not the end. At the next town meeting, although still a candidate for selectman, he was ignominiously defeated. Since that day he has run for several other offices, but his downfall is complete, and he has never been successful.

Alfred Austin on the Life of Queen Victoria.

London Dispatch, 23rd.

Mr. Alfred Austin, the poet laureate, publishes a long poem entitled "Victoria," in which he traces her life. He thus describes her character:

Queen, Empress, more than Empress or Queen,
The Lady of the World on high enthroned,
By right divine of duties well fulfilled,
To be the pattern to all Queens, all Kings,
All women and the consciences of men
Who look on duty as man's only right.

Having referred to the Queen's widowhood and the experience of her later life, Mr. Austin continues:

And long and late this happy season wore,
The mellow, gracious autum of her days,
This sweet, grave Indian summer, till we grew
To deem it limitless, and half forgot
Mortality's decree, and now there falls
A sudden sadness on our lives, and we
Can only bow disconsolate heads and weep
And look out from our lonely hearths and see
The homeless drifting of the winter mist
And hear the requiem of the winter wind.

One Minute Cough Cure, cures
That is what it was made for

Rheumatism

Rheumatic pains are the cries of protest and distress from tortured muscles, aching joints and excited nerves. The blood has been poisoned by the accumulation of waste matter in the system, and can no longer supply the pure and health sustaining food they require. The whole system feels the effect of this acid poison; and not until the blood has been purified and brought back to a healthy condition will the aches and pains cease.

Mrs. James Kell, of 707 Ninth street, N. E., Washington, D. C., writes as follows: "A few months ago I had an attack of Sciatic Rheumatism in its worst form. The pain was so intense that I became completely prostrated. The attack was an unusually severe one, and my condition was regarded as being very dangerous. I was attended by one of the most able doctors in Washington, who is also a member of the faculty of a leading medical college here. He told me to continue his prescriptions and I would get well. After having it filled twelve times without receiving the slightest benefit, I declined to continue his treatment any longer. Having heard of S. S. S. (Swift's Specific) recommended for Rheumatism, I decided, almost in despair however, to give the medicine a trial, and after I had taken a few bottles I was able to hobble around on crutches, and very soon thereafter had no use for them at all, S. S. S. having cured me sound and well. All the distressing pains have left me, my appetite has returned, and I am happy to be again restored to perfect health.

SSS the great vegetable purifier and tonic, is the ideal remedy in all rheumatic troubles. There are no opiates or minerals in it to disturb the digestion and lead to ruinous habits.

We have prepared a special book on Rheumatism which every sufferer from this painful disease should read. It is the most complete and interesting book of the kind in existence. It will be sent free to any one desiring it. Write our physicians fully and freely about your case. We make no charge for medical advice.

HEALTHY OLD AGE.

LARUE, BENTON CO. ARK., Aug. 4.

I am 49 years old and have been suffering with Change of Life. I had flooding spells so bad that none thought I could live. My husband got me Wine of Cardui and it saved my life. I am like another person since taking it.

MRS. E. B. TOWNSEND.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

It is the devout wish of nearly all people to live to a ripe old age. None of us want to die young. This universal desire can be realized if care be taken of the health in early and middle life. A little precaution then will add many years to our existence. Death can be kept away a long time. Happy, healthy old age will be the lot of the woman who promptly corrects the ailments which afflict her sex. In youth, Wine of Cardui will take the female child safely over the dividing line between girlhood and womanhood. As a wife she needs it to help her through the trials of pregnancy and childbirth with as little discomfort as possible. At the Change of Life it will help her over the dangerous place that appears in her pathway between 40 and 50. Then will come many years of truly blissful existence. She will grow old slowly and gracefully. To the last she will preserve that charm and beauty which are always characteristic of perfectly healthy grandmothers. It is for women alone to decide whether they will be healthy or sick. The remedy for their sickness is close at hand.

A NIGHT OF TERROR.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she could not live till morning" writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night. "All thought that she must soon die from pneumonia, but she begged for Dr. Kings New Discovery, saying that it had more than once saved her life, and had cured her of consumption. After three doses she slept easily all night, and its further use completely cured her." This marvelous medicine is guaranteed to cure all throat, chest and lung diseases. Only 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottle free at C. E. Holton's drug store.

When threatened by pneumonia or any other lung trouble, prompt relief is necessary, as it is dangerous to delay. We would suggest that One Minute Cough Cure be taken as soon as indications of having taken cold are noticed. It cures quickly and its early use prevents consumption. Howard Gardner.

A MONSTER DEVIL FISH

Destroying its victim, is a type of constipation. The power of this murderous malady is felt on organs and nerves and muscles and brain. There is no health till it's overcome. But Dr. King's New Life Pills are a safe and certain cure. Best in the world for stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Only 25 cents at C. E. Holton's drug store.

fair tonight in east, probably occasional rains in west portion; warmer Sunday, increasing cloudiness and probably rain; northeast winds becoming south, south to brisk on the coast.

Pepsin preparations often fail to relieve indigestion because they can digest only albumnious foods. There is one preparation that digests all classes of food, and that is Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. It cures the worst cases of indigestion and gives instant relief, for it digests what you eat. Howard Gardner.

COLD STEEL OR DEATH.

"There is but one small chance to save your life and that is through an operation," was the awful prospect set before Mrs. I. B. Hunt, of Lime Ridge, Wis., by her doctor after vainly trying to cure her of a frightful case of stomach trouble and yellow jauntice. He didn't count on the marvellous power of Electric Bitters to cure stomach and liver troubles, but she heard of it, took seven bottles, was wholly cured, avoided surgeon's knife, now weighs more and feels better than ever. It's positively guaranteed to cure stomach, liver and kidney troubles and never disappoints. Price 50c at C. E. Holton's drug store.

AN ANCIENT BELIEF.

The ancients believed that rheumatism was the work of a demon within a man. Any one who has had an attack of siatic or inflammatory rheumatism will agree that the affliction is demoniac enough to warrant the belief. It has never been claimed that Chamberlain's Pain Balm would cast out demons, but it will cure rheumatism, and hundreds bear testimony to the truth of this statement. One application relieves the pain, and this quick relief which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. For sale by C. E. Holton, Druggist.

This season there is a large death rate among children from croup and lung troubles. Prompt action will save the little ones from these terrible diseases. We know of nothing so certain to give instant relief as One Minute Cough Cure. It can also be relied upon in grippe and all throat and lung troubles of adults. Pleasant to take. Howard Gardner.

WINE OF CARDUI

HEALTHY OLD AGE.

LARUE, BENTON CO. ARK., Aug. 4.
I am 49 years old and have been suffering with Change of Life. I had flooding spells so bad that none thought I could live. My husband got me Wine of Cardui and it saved my life. I am like another person since taking it.
MRS. E. B. TOWNSEND.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

It is the devout wish of nearly all people to live to a ripe old age. None of us want to die young. This universal desire can be realized if care be taken of the health in early and middle life. A little precaution then will add many years to our existence. Death can be kept away a long time. Happy, healthy old age will be the lot of the woman who promptly corrects the ailments which afflict her sex. In youth, Wine of Cardui will take the female child safely over the dividing line between girlhood and womanhood. As a wife she needs it to help her through the trials of pregnancy and childbirth with as little discomfort as possible. At the Change of Life it will help her over the dangerous place that appears in her pathway between 40 and 50. Then will come many years of truly blissful existence. She will grow old slowly and gracefully. To the last she will preserve that charm and beauty which are always characteristic of perfectly healthy grandmothers. It is for women alone to decide whether they will be healthy or sick. The remedy for their sickness is close at hand.
